TWENTY-ONE DIE IN NAVAL BATTLE OFF GOTHLAND

Copenhagen. — 6 cruisers and 20 torpedo boats were engaged in the Thursday night naval battle off island of Gothland in which German mine layer Albatross was beached and destroyed. 21 dead. Capt. Lowenherd of the Albatross among them.

Dispatches from Petrograd today reported that German cruiser was badly damaged and forced ashore and advices from Swedish points report destruction of a German torpedo boat. It is believed here, however, that these reports are erroneous and that German mine layer sent ashore on Gothland was "cruiser" mentioned in Petrograd dispatches.

Reports from Gothland today indicate that a German squadron attempting to cover debarkation of German troops on Russian coast south of Windau, was attacked by a flotilla of Russian destroyers. Russians closed in upon German torpedo boats and inflicted heavy damage before several fast German cruisers dashed into action and forced the Russians to retire northward.

The mine layer Albatross, unable to escape because of her slow speed, received concentrated fire of several Russian warships. She was struck 25 times and was afire with her deck covered with dead and wounded when she beached at Hecreikan.

Swedish destroyer flotilla was on scene of engagement. Reports from Stockholm today said Russian destroyers continued pursuit into Swedish waters and that protest would undoubtedly be lodged with Russian government.

Expected engagement will be resumed.
